SNUGLY SNOOZING AWAY in her incubator at the Queen of Angels Hospital in Los Angeles is "Miracle," the 20-ounce baby born to Mrs. Earl Hope. The tot was born three months prematurely, but gives every indication that she will grow into normal babyhood. Note how tiny she is by comparing her size to the 12-inch ruler beside the incubator. The Hopes also have a ten-months-old boy.

New Superintendent To Take Berger Hospital Post Friday

Mrs. Margaret Bradbury, of Galipolis, named as new superintendent at Berger Hospital, will formally assume her duties there Friday.

Mrs. Bradbury, who has held hospital supervisory positions at Marion and Bellefontaine, will replace Mrs. Caroline Dennis who yielded the office nearly three months ago because of illness.

For the last few months Mrs. Dick Robinson has been acting superintendent.

Mrs. Bradbury will reside in Circleville after Sept. 1.

Meanwhile, the hospital board of commissioners Wednesday night cleared the way for publication of bids on the new wing project and remodeling of present facilities.

HOWARD KOCH succeeded Fred Lamb as a member of the board. Both men are residents of Scioto Township.

Contractor instructions and specifications were approved so that bids on the building program will appear in September and actual work begin the following month.

Board members expressed the hope that all the work can be completed and the new wing equipped for occupancy within a year.

Any interested citizen may view plans for the new addition at the hospital office.

Plans provide for the least possible interference with patient care.

1951 Plowing Champs Keep Ohio Crowns

HILLSBORO, Aug. 14—(P)—Martin Cummins showed the boys some real down-to-earth contour plowing Wednesday while Lawrence Goette-moeller dug the fanciest level-land furrows at the Ohio State Conservation Field Day matches.

Cummins, of Lewistown (Logan County), successfully defended his last year's championship in the plowing contests, which drew an estimated 25,000 spectators on a large farm near Serpent Mound State Park, southeast of here.

Second to Cummins in the eight-acre field, and an alternate to the national matches at Minnesota later this month, was Hugh French of Zanesville.

Goette-moeller, of St. Henry (Mercer County), wrestled the level land plowing title from Franklin Stoner Jr. of Celina to recapture his 1950 crown. His alternate to the national competition will be runner-up Robert Henize of Seaman (Adams County).

Third Polio Case Listed In County

A polio diagnosis was announced Thursday in the illness of William Harrington, 19, of 216 West Mound Street.

The youth, who is married and the father of a seven-month old child, was taken to Children's Hospital, Columbus, last Monday for tests.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Harrington.

Young Harrington was described as suffering only a minor attack and was to be returned to his home Thursday for continued observation and tests.

It was the third polio case reported in Pickaway County this year.

August Turns Up Extra Hot Burner

CHICAGO, Aug. 14—(P)—August turned up its burners Thursday over wide areas of the nation.

Much of Texas went into the 13th consecutive day of 100-degree plus heat wave. The mercury mounted toward the high 80s and 90s in the Northern and Southern Rockies and Northern Great Plains.

Parts of Kansas also sweltered in 100-degree heat. Rising temperatures were forecast for most of the Midwest.

Belgium Cuts Draft Period In NATO Army

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—(P)—Belgium's decision to cut down its military conscription period created new troubles for Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's European army which apparently were not anticipated here a short while ago.

The Brussels government decided Wednesday to knock three months off the 24-month service period for conscripts. It had failed the previous day to get neighboring countries to agree on a common two-year training program.

Belgium is the only member of the European Defense Community with a two-year service period. Norway requires 12 months, the Netherlands and France 18 months, and Italy 15 months. Great Britain, which is not an EDC member, has two years' service.

Ridgway, supreme Allied commander, had told EDC representatives that two years' training was the minimum for the caliber of reserve troops needed.

Belgium has one of the smallest forces in the EDC. Congress was told in March that this totaled 136,000 men. However, this was 1.5 percent of Belgium's nearly nine million people—the largest proportionate contribution.

U.S. Marines Beat Back 2 Red Thrusts

SEOUL, Aug. 14—(P)—U. S. Marines beat back two fierce Communist attacks Wednesday night to retain their newly-won hold on Bunker Hill, in Western Korea.

The battalion-size Red assaults were the third and fourth futile attempts to recapture territory seized early Tuesday by the Leather-necks. A UN briefing officer said Communist casualties were heavy. By mid-day, he said, dead enemy soldiers lay sprawled in groups on the scarred slope of the hill, only four miles east of Panmunjom, the truce talks site.

Allied warplanes continued to hammer at Red positions and the Air Force said they knocked out nine troop bunkers and three gun positions.

The Reds launched the last attack at 2:25 a. m. Thursday. After a crackling skirmish which lasted four minutes, they withdrew to their lines.

"When they found the Marines were really ready for them, they called it off," said Maj. Louis Breaunt, Dallas, Tex., who estimated 3,000 or more Reds have been assigned to retake Bunker Hill.

A-Plant Dollars Would Go Far

WAVERLY, Aug. 14—(P)—A dollar bill is six inches long. The new atomic energy plant in near-by hills is going to cost $1.2 billion.

Friday Is Official 'Old Maid's Day' Down In Denton, Texas, At Least

DENTON, Tex., Aug. 14—(P)—Bet you had forgotten about Aug. 15.

It's Old Maid's Day! In Denton, Tex. In the whole big state of Texas. Anywhere there's an old maid with the good humor to admit it and a good friend to celebrate it.

The old maids have been so successful in their self-proclaimed day that they want to share. This year the third annual year of celebration—the big day's founder and patron saint says they should help out a sister old maid.

The founder is Miss Dorothy Babb, North Texas State College Latin teacher of the upswell gray hairdo and the twinkling eyes, the one who gets introduced the year round as THE old maid.

"I'm just about worn out with it all," she said. Some of us got to thinking we ought to help out another old maid."

Now the other old maid is Miss Amelia Anthony, 37, who founded Girlstown, U. S. A., out on the West Texas prairies, just a few years ago.

Miss Anthony sent her best wishes to the Aug. 15 celebration in Denton last year and became a member in good spinster standing.

"We thought people who wanted to give a gift to an old maid could do it by making a donation to Girlstown in the name of some old maid." Miss Babb said. "Why, just this week I got a $5 check for Girlstown."

The old maids in Denton haven't made any definite plans about helping Girlstown yet.

They're going to have a party at Miss Babb's house Friday and talk about it.

Denton took the good-humored old maids to heart in 1950 and 1951, and the town is going to do it again. There'll be a free picture show, free soda pop and popcorn and all that and gift certificates from the merchants.

Miss Babb has gotten stacks of letters in recent weeks from old maids who say they're being feted in their hometowns too—in places like Oklahoma City,

Louisville and Durham, N. C.

The old maids in Denton started their day as a lark to shake off the summer doldrums. And Miss Babb jokingly said it was time they got some gifts in return for the wedding and baby gifts they had given.

And what gifts they got! Miss Babb even got dozens of proposals of marriage.

And now a gift for Girlstown, a home at Whiteface, Tex., for girls who need a home and love.

"Miss Anthony said they needed worst of all $150,000 for a new dining hall," Miss Babb said. "She told us jokingly that if we raised that much money, she'd name it 'The Dining Hall for Old Maids.' Well who knows—"

Weekly Briefing By Army Accepted

Ike Declines Personal Visit With Truman In Washington

DENVER, Aug. 14—(P)—Dwight D. Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, Wednesday declined an invitation from President Truman to go to Washington for a confidential "briefing" on the international situation.

But while he refused to make a personal visit to the White House, the Republican standard-bearer did accept the President's offer of a weekly briefing from the Central Intelligence Agency, an Army department.

And he said he would "instantly" change his decision against a personal visit to Washington if a national emergency should arise.

The general sent a telegram to the President saying "it is my duty to remain free" to analyze Truman administration policies publicly, and that it would be "unwise and result in confusion in the public mind" if he accepted the bid for an in-person visit.

Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic candidate for the presidency, was given a briefing on international affairs in the White House Tuesday. He met with Truman and his cabinet, and with defense and intelligence officials.

THE SAME DAY Eisenhower sharply criticized the move. He said it signified "The present administration is determined to nail down through its hand-picked successors every detail of the doctrines and policies that have brought us to the present situation of bewilderment, indecision and fear for the future."

In his telegram to Truman Wednesday, Eisenhower said: "As you know, the problems which you suggest for discussion are those with which I have lived for many years."

"In spite of this, I would instantly change this decision (not to accept the President's invitation) in the event there should arise a grave national emergency."

"There is nothing in your message to indicate that this is presently the case."

In Washington, Truman's press secretary, Joseph Short, told reporters "the emergency question was never considered. It never entered into the invitation at all."

Short said the invitation to Eisenhower was sent to the general

Wednesday, but that it was "in the works" before Stevenson's conference with Truman Tuesday.

SHORT SAID both Stevenson and Eisenhower will receive the weekly reports on the international situation from the Central Intelligence Agency.

Meanwhile, Stevenson teamed up with Vice President Alben Barkley for a speech-making preliminary to his big presidential campaign kickoff on Labor Day with Truman.

Stevenson and Barkley were slated to speak at the Illinois State Fair, where GOP vice presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon of California told Republicans Wednesday that Stevenson is a candidate of "the bosses."

Barkley and Stevenson will have a chance to answer that charge and make a few observations of their own in their appearance before a Democratic rally.

The formal Labor Day opening of the Democratic drive to put Stevenson in the White House will find the Illinois governor speaking at noon in Detroit while President Truman appears at 9 p. m. in Milwaukee on the same day. Those Sept. 1 speeches will be sponsored by labor groups in the two cities.

In Washington, a friend of both Truman and Stevenson said that Truman told Stevenson he would stay in the background of the coming presidential campaign for practical reasons.

"FIRST, THE President is a practical politician and knows that Stevenson would be handicapped campaigning as a Truman understudy," this Democratic strategist told a reporter, with the stipulation that he not be quoted directly.

"Mr. Truman's main ambition now is to go down in history as a great President whose policies were continued. He knows that chance could be marred if a Republican is elected with a resulting change in major Truman policies."

"Unless Stevenson gets the spotlight and the President stays in the background Mr. Truman realizes that he may weaken a strong candidate."

City Warning Dumpers Of Street Debris

The city, with newly-painted traffic markings on its main thoroughfares, is "sick and tired" of residents who toss rubbish into the streets, officials warned Wednesday.

City Health Director C. O. Leist, who said he was joined in the statement by Service Director Dewey Speakman, declared:

"We've been very lenient for a long time now in regard to the tossing of rubbish—and even garbage in a number of cases—out into the city streets. Columbus is cracking down on carelessness in this respect, and a number of other communities in the region are doing the same."

"The time has come in Circleville to teach tenants and home owners that it's illegal to throw rubbish into the streets. There's a fine for violators, and it can be made in proportion to the offense."

"WE'RE SICK and tired of the habit, and the local crackdown for cleaner streets may as well begin now."

A letter from Circleville Chamber of Commerce urging that the main downtown streets be flushed at regular intervals was read at a recent session of city council. No action was taken.

Leist said much of the litter found in streets "all over the city" is caused by residents who throw debris out in front of their homes after trimming trees and bushes.

"Apparently some of them have the idea that it's up to the city to haul such stuff away," Leist said. "This isn't true. Discarded tree limbs and the like are the responsibility of the resident, except when the debris is caused by a storm. In such a case, of course, the city will clean it up. Otherwise it's up to the person living on the property."

A-Plant Looks Big In Waverly

WAVERLY, Aug. 14—(P)—How big does $1.2 billion—the cost of a new atomic energy plant to be built in nearby hills—look in Pike County?

Well, the total value of all Pike County land, buildings, public utilities and tangible property is only $19,560,845. In Scioto Township, where the 6,500-acre plant will be built, all the township's 15,058 acres are valued at only $376,430—an average of $25 an acre.

Bandits Force Official Car Off Road, Smash Window In Holdup

WARREN, Aug. 14—(P)—Three men masked with burlap sacks forced the car of a Warren bank official off the road Thursday morning and robbed him of about $71,000 in cash.

Charles Foley was taking the money from the Union Savings & Banking Co.'s main building to the branch office of which he is manager.

Police quoted him as saying two of the men leaped out of the holdup car armed with a sawed off shotgun and a revolver after cutting in front of him with their auto.

One smashed his car window with the shotgun butt and the pair grabbed a package which held the money, he told police.

A woman in the neighborhood saw the holdup and was reported to have taken down the license number as the bandit car sped away, leaving Foley, who was not harmed, behind.

POLICE, STATE highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies immediately started setting up roadblocks in the area. The FBI also entered the investigation.

Bank officials said Foley got money at the main bank each week. They said he varied his routes in an effort to foil just such a holdup as occurred Thursday.

It was the biggest holdup in the Warren area since 1935 when three hoodlums hijacked a small truck which was carrying $50,000 in registered bonds and $72,000 in cash from the Erie Railroad station to the postoffice. The money was to have been used for a Republic Steel payroll.

The most recent holdup was on June 16, 1951, when four men forced a car off the road and escaped with $42,000 that two Copperweld Steel Co. employees were taking to the plant for a payroll.

In 1933 two Second National Bank messengers were robbed of $88,000 by three armed men. The messengers were taking the money from the postoffice to the bank.

Adlai Decries Drift Toward Washington

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 14—(P)—Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson called on the 48 states Thursday to give such good government to their people that they will halt the "tidal wave" of centralized power sweeping toward Washington.

In the first major speech since his nomination, Stevenson warned this drift will go on unless the states "perform those necessary functions of government which don't have to be performed in Washington."

Then he said: "The people will demand the services and if they don't get them at home they will turn to Uncle Sam. The states are the dikes which we can build more strongly against the flood waters sweeping toward the District of Columbia."

"It is important because the states are important. We talk about and deplore incessantly the increasing centralization of power over our lives in Washington. But that tidal draft toward the capital will go on and on unless those necessary functions of government which don't have to be performed in Washington are performed, and properly performed, at the state or local level."

Lightning Strikes Five Times

SEATTLE, Aug. 14—(P)—A young mountain climber struck five times by lightning as he and a companion stood atop Mt. Stuart in the Cascades says he considers himself "the luckiest man alive."

"After the third bolt, I thought I wanted to die," Alan Robert Grant, 19, Seattle said Wednesday after his rescue. Grant's companion, Paul Brinkoff, 26, was killed in the storm that struck just after they reached the summit of the 9,470-foot peak.

Government Starts Buying 6,500 Pike County Acres

WAVERLY, Aug. 14—(P)—Army engineers have started buying 6,500 acres of farm and wood land for the $1.2 billion atomic energy plant in Pike County.

The government rolled into high gear Thursday getting the vast project underway. Surveyors from the Tennessee Valley Authority climbed hills, mapping the site where half-mile long buildings will be erected over four years by 30,000 workers. About 1,500 workers are expected to be employed by winter.

Officials said about 50 farm families would have to be moved. In Columbus federal clerks prepared notices of property condemnation for 110 landowners in Pike County. The government hopes to buy the land by negotiation but can get it by condemnation suit if necessary.

The stupendous size of the Pike County plant became a little clearer when Atomic Energy Commission officials disclosed they plan to build two generating plants which will make enough electricity to run New York City. They'll produce 2.2 million kilowatts—a little more than the 1.8 million kilowatts needed to run the atomic plant.

Other figures on the size of the project were revealed:

Ten million square feet of floor space, enough engineering drawings to cover 21 acres, 87,000 instruments, 640,000 cubic yards of concrete, 25,000 tons of steel, 565 miles of pipe, 1,605 miles of copper tubing, 150,000 50-ton cars of coal a year.

The AEC men told local officials they should start surveying for trailer camps to house the first construction workers. They said Pike and Scioto Counties probably will be declared a "critical housing area" to get federal housing aid.

Just temporary construction headquarters will need 25,000 to 30,000 square feet of office space and 400 to 500 office workers.

His 15th Bride Has Ding Dong Dad In Dutch

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14.—(P)—The Ding Dong Daddy of the "D" line has taken his 15th bride, but he's in the dog house. She locked him out of their apartment Wednesday night, nine days after their marriage.

He is Francis H. Van Wie, 66, former San Francisco streetcar conductor, lion tamer and boxer. His disillusioned bride is 73-year-old Amelia Pritchard.

"Why, he led me to believe he was a bachelor," said a newsman from behind the barred door of her apartment. "No, I didn't know he'd ever been married. I'm going to stay right here until I can make up my mind what to do. It's hard to believe he has been married so many times."

Van Wie served a San Quentin Prison term for bigamy. He wooed his women on the San Francisco "D" line but neglected the legal formalities of divorcing them. When the law caught up with him and he was tried, he testified that he had been wed 12 or 13 times. He received three 10-year terms but was paroled in 1947 after serving two years.

Judge Chester Pendleton handed down the sentences in Hancock County common pleas court.

The defendants:

Fred B. Karg, former state meat inspector, indicted for soliciting and accepting bribes and for perjury; pleaded guilty to perjury.

Harold and Alvin Tesnow, maintenance men at the Buckeye Packing Co., formerly Kay Brand, pleaded guilty to perjury.

John K. Studer, Kay Brand sales manager, accused of selling motor vehicle without delivery of title, pleaded guilty.

Virgil McGarrity, Kay Brand salesman, guilty of perjury.

Miss Anthony sent her best wishes to the Aug. 15 celebration in Denton last year and became a member in good spinster standing.

"We thought people who wanted to give a gift to an old maid could do it by making a donation to Girlstown in the name of some old maid," Miss Babb said. "Why, just this week I got a $5 check for Girlstown."

The old maids in Denton haven't made any definite plans about helping Girlstown yet.

They're going to have a party at Miss Babb's house Friday and talk about it.

Denton took the good-humored old maids to heart in 1950 and 1951, and the town is going to do it again. There'll be a free picture show, free soda pop and popcorn and all that and gift certificates from the merchants.

Miss Babb has gotten stacks of letters in recent weeks from old maids who say they're being feted in their hometowns too—in places like Oklahoma City,

Louisville and Durham, N. C.

The old maids in Denton started their day as a lark to shake off the summer doldrums. And Miss Babb jokingly said it was time they got some gifts in return for the wedding and baby gifts they had given.

And what gifts they got! Miss Babb even got dozens of proposals of marriage.

And now a gift for Girlstown, a home at Whiteface, Tex., for girls who need a home and love.

"Miss Anthony said they needed worst of all $150,000 for a new dining hall," Miss Babb said. "She told us jokingly that if we raised that much money, she'd name it 'The Dining Hall for Old Maids.' Well who knows—"

Weekly Briefing By Army Accepted

Ike Declines Personal Visit With Truman In Washington

DENVER, Aug. 14.—(P)—Dwight D. Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, Wednesday declined an invitation from President Truman to go to Washington for a confidential "briefing" on the international situation.

But while he refused to make a personal visit to the White House, the Republican standard-bearer did accept the President's offer of a weekly briefing from the Central Intelligence Agency, an Army department.

And he said he would "instantly" change his decision against a personal visit to Washington if a national emergency should arise.

The general sent a telegram to the President saying "it is my duty to remain free" to analyze Truman administration policies publicly, and that it would be "unwise and result in confusion in the public mind" if he accepted the bid for an in-person visit.

Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic candidate for the presidency, was given a briefing on international affairs in the White House Tuesday. He met with Truman and his cabinet, and with defense and intelligence officials.

THE SAME DAY Eisenhower sharply criticized the move. He said it signified "The present administration is determined to nail down through its hand-picked successors every detail of the doctrines and policies that have brought us to the present situation of bewilderment, indecision and fear for the future."

In his telegram to Truman Wednesday, Eisenhower said: "As you know, the problems which you suggest for discussion are those with which I have lived for many years."

"In spite of this, I would instantly change this decision (not to accept the President's invitation) in the event there should arise a grave national emergency."

"There is nothing in your message to indicate that this is presently the case."

In Washington, Truman's press secretary, Joseph Short, told reporters "the emergency question was never considered. It never entered into the invitation at all."

Short said the invitation to Eisenhower was sent to the general

Wednesday, but that it was "in the works" before Stevenson's conference with Truman Tuesday.

SHORT SAID both Stevenson and Eisenhower will receive the weekly reports on the international situation from the Central Intelligence Agency.

Meanwhile, Stevenson teamed up with Vice President Alben Barkley for a speech-making preliminary to his big presidential campaign kickoff on Labor Day with Truman.

Stevenson and Barkley were slated to speak at the Illinois State Fair, where GOP vice presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon of California told Republicans Wednesday that Stevenson is a candidate of "the bosses."

Barkley and Stevenson will have a chance to answer that charge and make a few observations of their own in their appearance before a Democratic rally.

The formal Labor Day opening of the Democratic drive to put Stevenson in the White House will find the Illinois governor speaking at noon in Detroit while President Truman appears at 9 p. m. in Milwaukee on the same day. Those Sept. 1 speeches will be sponsored by labor groups in the two cities.

In Washington, a friend of both Truman and Stevenson said that Truman told Stevenson he would stay in the background of the coming presidential campaign for practical reasons.

"FIRST, THE President is a practical politician and knows that Stevenson would be handicapped campaigning as a Truman understudy," this Democratic strategist told a reporter, with the stipulation that he not be quoted directly.

"Mr. Truman's main ambition now is to go down in history as a great President whose policies were continued. He knows that chance could be marred if a Republican is elected with a resulting change in major Truman policies."

"Unless Stevenson gets the spotlight and the President stays in the background Mr. Truman realizes that he may weaken a strong candidate."

ASHLAND, Neb., Aug. 14.—(P)—A tornado struck here Wednesday night and shattered the barn where Virgil Owen was milking. Owen was pinned underneath a cow until firemen freed him.

WASHINGTON tax experts frankly doubt whether either Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson or Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been thoroughly briefed on the tax problem.

IN DRAFTING that increase, which went into effect last fall, Congress set definite cutoff dates for the increased rates. The veterans on the tax-writing committees recognized that a tax without an expiration date is, in practical effect, a permanent levy.

In the absence of positive legislative action next year, taxes are due to go down $5.2 billion. There would be a cut of $2.2 billion in individual income taxes, $2.2 billion in corporation taxes and some $800 million in excise levies.

Individual income taxes are scheduled to revert to the last previous rates Dec. 31, 1953.

Corporate excess profits tax would be cut in half for calendar 1953 and abolished for calendar 1954. The increase in the regular corporation taxes is due to run out April 1, 1954.

That also is the date for the scheduled cutback in a number of excise levies, including those on liquor, beer, cigarettes, autos and gasoline.

Washington tax experts frankly doubt whether either Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson or Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been thoroughly briefed on the tax problem.

City Warning Dumpers Of Street Debris

The city, with newly-painted traffic markings on its main thoroughfares, is "sick and tired" of residents who toss rubbish into the streets, officials warned Wednesday.

City Health Director C. O. Leist, who said he was joined in the statement by Service Director Dewey Speakman, declared:

"We've been very lenient for a long time now in regard to the tossing of rubbish—and even garbage in a number of cases—out into the city streets. Columbus is cracking down on carelessness in this respect, and a number of other communities in the region are doing the same."

"The time has come in Circleville to teach tenants and home owners that it's illegal to throw rubbish into the streets. There's a fine for violators, and it can be made in proportion to the offense."

A letter from Circleville Chamber of Commerce urging that the main downtown streets be flushed at regular intervals was read at a recent session of city council. No action was taken.

Leist said much of the litter found in streets "all over the city" is caused by residents who throw debris out in front of their homes after trimming trees and bushes.

"Apparently some of them have the idea that it's up to the city to haul such stuff away," Leist said. "This isn't true. Discarded tree limbs and the like are the responsibility of the resident, except when the debris is caused by a storm. In such a case, of course, the city will clean it up. Otherwise it's up to the person living on the property."

A-Plant Looks Big In Waverly

WAVERLY, Aug. 14.—(P)—How big does $1.2 billion—the cost of a new atomic energy plant to be built in nearby hills—look in Pike County?

Well, the total value of all Pike County land, buildings, public utilities and tangible property is only $19,560,845. In Scioto Township, where the 6,500-acre plant will be built, all the township's 15,658 acres are valued at only $376,430—an average of $25 an acre.

Burlap Sacks Used To Cover Thugs' Heads

Bandits Force Official Car Off Road, Smash Window In Holdup

WARREN, Aug. 14.—(P)—Three men masked with burlap sacks forced the car of a Warren bank official off the road Thursday morning and robbed him of about $71,000 in cash.

Charles Foley was taking the money from the Union Savings & Banking Co.'s main building to the branch office of which he is manager.

Police quoted him as saying two of the men leaped out of the holdup car armed with a sawed off shotgun and a revolver after cutting in front of him with their auto.

One smashed his car window with the shotgun butt and the pair grabbed a package which held the money, he told police.

A woman in the neighborhood saw the holdup and was reported to have taken down the license number as the bandit car sped away, leaving Foley, who was not harmed, behind.

POLICE, STATE highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies immediately started setting up roadblocks in the area. The FBI also entered the investigation.

Bank officials said Foley got money at the main bank each week. They said he varied his routes in an effort to foil just such a holdup as occurred Thursday.

It was the biggest holdup in the Warren area since 1935 when three hoodlums hijacked a small truck which was carrying $50,000 in registered bonds and $72,000 in cash from the Erie Railroad station to the postoffice. The money was to have been used for a Republic Steel payroll.

The most recent holdup was on June 16, 1951, when four men forced a car off the road and escaped with $42,000 that two Cooper-perwell Steel Co. employees were taking to the plant for a payroll.

In 1933 two Second National Bank messengers were robbed of $68,000 by three armed men. The messengers were taking the money from the postoffice to the bank.

Adlai Decries Drift Toward Washington

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 14.—(P)—Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson called on the 48 states Thursday to give such good government to their people that they will halt the "tidal wave" of centralized power sweeping toward Washington.

In the first major speech since his nomination, Stevenson warned this drift will go on unless the states "perform those necessary functions of government which don't have to be performed in Washington."

Then he said: "The people will demand the services and if they don't get them at home they will turn to Uncle Sam. The states are the dikes which we can build more strongly against the flood waters sweeping toward the District of Columbia."

"It is important because the states are important. We talk about and deplore incessantly the increasing centralization of power over our lives in Washington. But that tidal drift toward the capital will go on and on unless those necessary functions of government which don't have to be performed in Washington are performed, and properly performed, at the state or local level."

Lightning Strikes Five Times

SEATTLE, Aug. 14.—(P)—A young mountain climber struck five times by lightning as he and a companion stood atop Mt. Stuart in the Cascades says he considers himself "the luckiest man alive."

"After the third bolt, I thought I wanted to die," Alan Robert Grant, 19, Seattle said Wednesday after his rescue. Grant's companion, Paul Erikoff, 20, was killed in the storm that struck just after they reached the summit of the 9,470-foot peak.

Government Starts Buying 6,500 Pike County Acres

WAVERLY, Aug. 14.—(P)—Army engineers have started buying 6,500 acres of farm and wood land for the $1.2 billion atomic energy plant in Pike County.

The government rolled into high gear Thursday getting the vast project underway. Surveyors from the Tennessee Valley Authority climbed hills, mapping the site where half-mile long buildings will be erected over four years by 30,000 workers. About 1,500 workers are expected to be employed by winter.

Officials said about 50 farm families would have to be moved. In Columbus federal clerks prepared notices of property condemnation for 110 landowners in Pike County. The government hopes to buy the land by negotiation but can get it by condemnation suit if necessary.

The stupendous size of the Pike County plant became a little clearer when Atomic Energy Commission officials disclosed they plan to build two generating plants which will make enough electricity to run New York City. They'll produce 2.2 million kilowatts—a little more than the 1.8 million kilowatts needed to run the atomic plant.

Other figures on the size of the project were revealed:

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(P)—Aside from a runup in nearby corn deliveries, grain did not move far from previous closing prices on the Board of Trade Thursday.

September and December corn jumped around two to three cents in the first few minutes of trading on rumors the Commodity Credit Corp. had cancelled shipping instructions on corn destined for this market. Later, it was learned there had been no change in basic policy. Corn eased.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

The child who does more bad things than a younger brother or sister and gets punished more than the younger is sure he is loved less, and because of this feeling does more bad things. On goes the spiral.

Here is a letter from a mother with such a situation on her hands:

"Dear Dr. Myers: We have a great problem in our elder son, six. Until the age of four he was a good child and played happily with his younger brother, two years his junior. However, since the age of four he has been a trial. Through his unkind acts, teasing and such, we have lost the friendship of most all of our neighbors, and in a small town such as ours, this is not easy for us.

"We haven't fought over him, nor have we tried to minimize his unkind acts. We treat both children exactly alike, though the six-year-old has privileges due children his age—privileges not allowed the younger child.

"He'll promise, through tears of apparent repentance, to be a good boy—we forgive him, send him out to play, and bang, less than five minutes later he's done something else. He'll admit he committed the act, he'll admit he was fully aware of the fact he'd been forbidden to do just that—and we're just where we started.

"I've tried just a little extra loving, I've tried chair-sitting, and the latter has absolutely no effect on him. He has been slapped, spanked, and even whipped.

"I cannot trust the child; he's repeatedly proven himself unworthy of our trust. He's so disobedient I actually fear for his future. At school he does especially well, is considered exceptionally brilliant; at home he keeps me in misery."

Here, in part, is how I answered this mother: Since this lad gets on so well at school there must be home factors you have overlooked.

You say you parents treat these children alike, and I have no doubt you suppose you do so. Presumably the four-year-old brother is just about perfect. But as the older boy has done more bad things and therefore wins more rebukes and punishments, he surely supposes he is not loved as much as his brother.

This feeling of jealousy, in turn, causes the elder to do more bad things, receiving still more punishments.

But, of course, you need to do something to curb at least some of the bad ways of the elder. You also need to find ways to make this older boy feel loved more nearly as much as he is sure his baby brother is loved.

When this older boy is good—which must be pretty often—you and Dad should have more good times with him and celebrate his successes, and prove real affection for him.

Pick out a few situations in which he must clearly be forbidden something. Command him just once then. Check carefully. When he disobeys, immediately assign him to sit in a chair without amusement where you can see him for exactly 35 minutes.

Do not stand over him, but be in sight. The moment he leaves the chair before the time is up, apply a stop or switch with effect. Don't use physical punishment in any other instance.

After he has served the allotted time, merely tell him the time is up. Exact no promises. Give no admonition or warning. Be very sure he gets exactly the same sentence if he should repeat the offense.

Q. Suppose that, during a stroll with one or more of our children on property where the owner had given us permission to go, one of the party inadvertently broke the gate or panel of fence. What would be my duty as citizen?

A. To report the matter to the owner and pay him for the damage; not only for justice to the owner, but for moral obligation to your children.

Q. Don't you think our son, nine, might gain as much value from a fishing trip with his father or a stroll with him through the woods or fields as from going to Sunday school?

A. He might, but if Dad would go with him to Sunday school, they still might find time for such other fun together as you name.

Vacation Tales Roadblock In Office Routine

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—One of the perils of American office life summer days is the returned vacationist.

He insists that you hear about his vacation—but he closes his big ears like a car door when you want to tell him about your vacation.

How can you deal with him? You can't get away. He will even trail you into the men's room to relate the strange things that happened to him. You would think no one else had taken a vacation before in the history of the human race.

The only sure way to halt him is to try to borrow money from him, or else top him by interrupting. "Oh, by the way, Joe, while you were gone I saw a flying saucer."

What the average office needs from June until Labor Day is a "vacation hour" each morning.

For the first 60 minutes of each workday the office staff could assemble and listen en masse to the returning pilgrims tell the sad and wonderful story of what befell them. Anybody who even mentioned the word vacation the rest of the day would be automatically fired.

The office vacationists fall into pretty standard types. Here are a few you may recognize:

1. The postcard fiend—He writes you a postcard as he leaves his home, and stops off at every other filling station along the way to mail more. Two weeks after he is back at work you are still getting postcards about what a swell time he is having.

2. The calamity kid—Beesting and covered with poison ivy, he returns on crutches. "Just stopped by on my way to the hospital," he mumbles through his bandages. "The doc says I got to spend a month in bed. Will you handle my work while I'm gone?"

3. The sultry stenographer—She looks the color of a hand-rubbed walnut bookcase from days of beach sunning, and there are wedding bells in her eyes. But the new boy friend she met at the shore quits calling her up after three days, and for the rest of the summer she snaps at you if you even say "hello."

4. The camera nut—He has to be forcibly restrained from pulling down the office window blinds and trying to show everybody the interesting new movies he made of Niagara Falls.

5. The statistician—This boy not only has the figures of how much he paid for gas and oil at every step—he also wants to tell you the air pressure in each tire the day he drove up Pike's Peak.

6. The everloving homebody—"Vacations are more fun at home," he begins. And for the next three hours he bores you with the details of how much money he saved and what a grand time he had repainting his little gray nest in the suburbs.

7. The funny fellow—Everything comical happens to him. "I threw my mother-in-law to the bears in Yellowstone Park," he says, "and guess what—they arrested me. How did I know you weren't allowed to feed the animals?"

8. The don't-let-'em-get-away-with anything guy—"They try to rob you ever step of the way," he moans, and neglects to mention the dime tip he pocketed that the tourist before him had left for the waitress at a hogdog stand.

9. The boss—"Aren't they cute," he says, pulling out some snapshots of his children wearing striped bathingsuits. And how can you tell him they look like baby saber-toothed tigers?

500 Antioch Students Toe Commie Line

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee has been told that almost 40 per cent of the student body at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, "support all the activities and the line as the Communist Party on that campus hands it down."

The testimony by Harvey M. Matusow of Dayton, Ohio, a former Communist and onetime undercover agent for the FBI, was given last March.

Matusow, who has discussed his experiences in the Communist youth movement with several congressional and governmental bodies, then was on the staff of the Ohio Un-American Activities Commission.

The witness said that six per cent of Antioch's 1,200 students were "actual card-carrying members" of the Young Progressives of America, which Matusow and others described as a Communist front.

Questioned further, Matusow said:

"CONSERVATIVE estimates of the influence of YPA on the rest of the student body, and that is on the basis of certain investigations that were conducted down there, were that almost 40 per cent of the student body, or about 500 students at that school, support all the activities and the line as the YPA hands it down, and as the Communist Party on that campus hands it down through the YPA."

BUICK'S POWER STEERING?

It's the big NEWS of the year

THERE is a host of things that endear a ROADMASTER to anyone who loves to drive.

There's the might of its Fireball 8 Engine—most powerful ever put in a Buick.

There's the thrift of its Airpower carburetor—a four-barrel automatic that literally brings increased power right out of thin air.

There's its hushed and luxurious silence—its poised and level ride that cost a million dollars to develop—and the infinite smoothness of its Dynaflo Drive.

But the thing that has brought the most cheers for this big and obedient beauty is Buick's version of Power Steering.*

Gone is the tug of turning, parking, maneuvering in small space.

Power Steering takes over the effort of turning the front wheels—makes it a one-hand operation.

Do you have to learn to drive all over again if you have this new Buick feature?

You definitely do not. On the open road, you have that same sure sense of command that you've always had. Coming out of a curve, you can loosen your grip, and the front wheels right themselves just as they do on every Buick.

But you'll notice this: When you suddenly hit loose dirt or sand—or a stretch of rough road—Power Steering smoothly goes into action—helps take up the jerk—makes control of the wheel easier and driving safer.

Wouldn't you like to try out this newest wonder—on a ROADMASTER or a SUPER? You say the word, and we'll do the rest.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster and Super only.

Vacation Tales Roadblock In Office Routine

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—One of the perils of American office life summer days is the returned vacationist.

He insists that you hear about his vacation—but he closes his big ears like a car door when you want to tell him about your vacation.

How can you deal with him? You can't get away. He will even trail you into the men's room to relate the strange things that happened to him. You would think no one else had taken a vacation before in the history of the human race.

The only sure way to halt him is to try to borrow money from him, or else top him by interrupting. "Oh, by the way, Joe, while you were gone I saw a flying saucer."

What the average office needs from June until Labor Day is a "vacation hour" each morning.

For the first 60 minutes of each workday the office staff could assemble and listen en masse to the returning pilgrims tell the sad and wonderful story of what befell them. Anybody who even mentioned the word vacation the rest of the day would be automatically fired.

The office vacationists fall into pretty standard types. Here are a few you may recognize:

1. The postcard fiend—He writes you a postcard as he leaves his home, and stops off at every other filling station along the way to mail more. Two weeks after he is back at work you are still getting postcards about what a swell time he is having.

2. The calamity kid—Beestung and covered with poison ivy, he returns on crutches. "Just stopped by on my way to the hospital," he mumbles through his bandages. "The doc says I got to spend a month in bed. Will you handle my work while I'm gone?"

3. The sultry stenographer—She looks the color of a hand-rubbed walnut bookcase from days of beach sunning, and there are wedding bells in her eyes. But the new boy friend she met at the shore quits calling her up after three days, and for the rest of the summer she snaps at you if you even say "hello."

4. The camera nut—He has to be forcibly restrained from pulling down the office window blinds and trying to show everybody the interesting new movies he made of Niagara Falls.

5. The statistician—This boy not only has the figures of how much he paid for gas and oil at every step—he also wants to tell you the air pressure in each tire the day he drove up Pike's Peak.

6. The everloving homebody—"Vacations are more fun at home," he begins. And for the next three hours he bores you with the details of how much money he saved and what a grand time he had repainting his little gray nest in the suburbs.

7. The funny fellow—Everything comical happens to him. "I threw my mother-in-law to the bears in Yellowstone Park," he says, "and guess what—they arrested me. How did I know you weren't allowed to feed the animals?"

8. The don't-let-'em-get-away-with-anything guy—"They try to rob you ever step of the way," he moans, and neglects to mention the dime tip he pocketed for the tourist before him had left for the waitress at a hogdog stand.

9. The boss—"Aren't they cute," he says, pulling out some snapshots of his children wearing striped bathingsuits. And how can you tell him they look like baby saber-toothed tigers?

500 Antioch Students Toe Commie Line

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—(AP)—The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee has been told that almost 40 per cent of the student body at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, "support all the activities and the line as the Communist Party on that campus hands it down."

The testimony by Harvey M. Matusow of Dayton, Ohio, a former Communist and onetime undercover agent for the FBI, was given last March.

Matusow, who has discussed his experiences in the Communist youth movement with several congressional and governmental bodies, then was on the staff of the Ohio Un-American Activities Commission.

The witness said that six per cent of Antioch's 1,200 students were "actual card-carrying members" of the Young Progressives of America, which Matusow and others described as a Communist front.

Questioned further, Matusow said:

"CONSERVATIVE estimates of the influence of YPA on the rest of the student body, and that is on the basis of certain investigations that were conducted down there, were that almost 40 per cent of the student body, or about 500 students at that school, support all the activities and the line as the YPA hands it down, and as the Communist Party on that campus hands it down through the YPA."

AUSTRIA APPEALS

A MOVE is under way to enlist the support of the United Nations in behalf of an Austrian settlement that would end the postwar occupation and restore the independence of the Vienna government. What good this will do is obscure, but Austria is submitting its case to all members of the UN, in hope that the question will be brought up in the next General Assembly, where, Austria appears to think, pressure might be brought to bear through a recommendation having behind it the weight of world opinion.

In the UN charter the handling of World War II peacemaking was reserved to the great powers. But as the result of a deadlock between the Western powers and the Soviet Union, one by one these problems are being dumped into the lap of the world organization.

This has been true with respect to the independence of Korea, for example, and the disposition of the former African colonies of Italy. Somewhat related were the Security Council's consideration of the Berlin blockade, and of the delayed withdrawal of Soviet troops from Iran.

Inability of the great powers to reach agreement has tended to solidify the partition of Germany. It has produced a peace treaty with Japan in which the Soviet Union refused to participate.

Unless an effective lever can be found to lift the occupation of Austria, that country stands in peril of the same fate that befell Germany-partition. Austria has long since been drained by Moscow of more than the reparations to which the Soviet could be justly held to be entitled.

The other powers have been ready for a long time to honor their pledges, but Moscow clings to the advantages derived from maintaining its troops in the very center of Europe. It will be interesting to see whether the UN can shake loose its grip.

It is alleged that when he went to work for Remington-Rand at $100,000 a year General MacArthur had to throw away a straight-edged razor he had used for 50 years and take up an automatic, but he must have known about this before he accepted the post.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Congress passed and the President approved the following law:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, under such terms and conditions as he shall determine, the President is hereby authorized to extend, or to enter into an agreement extending, to the representatives of member states (other than the United States) on the Council of the Organization of American States, and to members of their staffs, the same privileges and immunities, subject to corresponding conditions and obligations, as are enjoyed by diplomatic envoys accredited to the United States."

Nobody seems to bother about such matters any more, but here is an additional group of aliens who are given privileges in the United States which American citizens do not enjoy. Everybody connected with the United Nations, down to the chauffeurs of the underlings, enjoys the privilege of extraterritoriality.

One day last winter, I was coming out of a restaurant in Rockefeller Center, when I saw a policeman politely, almost deferentially, telling the chauffeur of one of those UN cars to move out of a space where no one is permitted to park. The chauffeur resisted the suggestion, insisted upon his privileges, but as a crowd had gathered, he finally thought of the effects of public opinion on his country which was undoubtedly getting a subsidy from us on one pretext or another.

I asked the harried policeman why he did not tell the so and so to get the hell out of there as he would do to any American under similar or the same circumstance. He answered that it would result in a diplomatic crisis with the State Department writing a formal note to the Mayor of New York.

Extraterritoriality is a courtesy reserved for diplomats with the object of freeing them from restraints by the country to which they have been delegated. It is a privilege which is nearly always abused. From the diplomat, as a person, it has been extended to his household and to his office staff and to those who service them. Its extension has been abused by some countries giving diplomatic passports to those who have no right to them, including spies.

It is true that just as the United States grants extraterritorial privileges to foreign diplomats, so they are granted to our representatives abroad. The difference, however, is that many or even most of the international organizations, such as the United Nations and there are therefore too many persons in this country who enjoy extraterritorial privileges. In New York, the United Nations people get a special license plate with UN on it to warn anyone not to get into trouble with the driver of that car as he need pay no damages, need carry no insurance and cannot be arrested.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

"MAYBE it's just another of Leonis' slick moves," Slim said hopefully. "It'd be like him to sell another man's land to some fool that wouldn't know the difference. Looks like you need me more'n ever. I'll sure get back fast."

"All right, Slim. We'll meet you at the rancho after we come back from Los Angeles. If we get a ranch, we'll work it. If we haven't," He shrugged eloquently.

"There's a big fire somewhere off in the mountains," Slim said as he kicked off the brake and shouted the horses into motion. The wagon gathered speed on the downgrade and soon disappeared around the bend. Hal and Blaise had mounted and galloped along the road.

"Slim said there was a fire, Hal, could be most anywhere, but I'd like to make sure."

They wound through the mountains at a fast pace. They came out on the final ridge and immediately saw the dirty gray cloud high against the southern sky. Hal could see it was a big fire, burning deeper into the distant Santa Monica toward the ocean. He jerked around when he heard Blaise's exclamation. The man's eyes were wide, his face stricken.

"That's us!"

Blaise grimly raked the spurs and rocketed down the last slope. Hal raced to catch up with him and both rode at breakneck speed through the village and out into the Valley beyond.

As they watched, sudden bright flares and billowing columns of black smoke marked where big clumps of sumac burned fiercely. Over it all was the gray-yellow smoke of the sagebrush, flaming along the mountain slopes. Already he could see the black carpet of ruin the fire left behind it.

They reached the highway, plunged across. Blaise turned into the ranch road, racing up it to the narrow opening of the canyon, through the portal. He reined in, face suddenly white. The ranch house was only smoldering, not ashes, the chimney standing grim and black above the ruins. Blaise scarcely heard Hal rein in beside him, or the man's amazed oath. The corral was gone. Only the decrepit bunkhouse remained. Leonis had returned an answer to his challenge.

They turned toward that portion of the ranch yard that the flames had missed. Hal searched the corral while Blaise went directly to the bunkhouse. He pushed open the door, saw that the dust on the floor had been undisturbed. He worked down the slope and at last stopped, calling Hal.

"Horses, at least three of them. They stood here while the riders set the fire."

Hal hitched at his gun belt, passed. "That's good enough for me. I'd head for Calabasas."

Blaise stood silent, studying the tracks, then lifted his head and looked back at the smoke, now further away beyond the ridges.

"Maybe it's good enough for me, and you, Hal, but we need more—a lot more."

"Why, man—"

"Proof for you and me," Blaise cut in swiftly. "But Leonis hog-tied me once before. Maybe he's waiting for us to come riding in to get his hide. I'm not going scalp-hunting without better proof. Any three riders could've made these tracks, Hal... Scorpion riders, pilgrims passing through, maybe some of Vasquez's ridge-runners if they're in the neighborhood—or even Raikes and some Montanas riders. Who were they?"

"Scorpion!" Hal snapped. "I'd back that bet," Blaise nodded. "But I can't prove it. Leonis could kill us out of hand if we went after him."

"We could prove outside them tracks? I'll have hard facts before I jump him. I've had enough of guards and cells and stone walls."

Hal grumbled but subsided. He turned back toward the house and distastefully surveyed the ruins.

"So what do we do? Give up?"

"No," Blaise said so sharply that Hal jerked his head around. "We can build a corral and live in the shack. We got the land—"

"If that'll let you have it," Hal snapped.

"We'll check on that. Maybe it's not gone. Scorpion or Las Montanas won't drive me out."

They rode grimly out of the canyon and back along the trail that wound down to the Valley. On the spine of the last ridge, Blaise drew rein and his eyes coldly swept over the Valley, coming to rest for a moment on the low ridges that hid Calabasas.

"Looks like no one was interested in the fire," he said evenly. He folded his hands on the saddlehorn and leaned forward on them. "Of course, it was up in the hills and folks let 'em burn out."

"But your rancho's up there. They knew you'd come back."

"They knew I'd come back," Blaise nodded. "Leonis knew it, the Thatchers knew it. No one come."

"They expected it," Hal snapped.

"Or didn't care," Blaise added. "There's always that." He straightened and touched the horse's flanks with his spurs and set his face toward Los Angeles.

Anger gradually left him, giving way to an ever-increasing mood of despondency. He had the dull, crushed feeling that perhaps he had been a fool and a dreamer all along, that he faced too great a task against too many odds. Even this present journey appeared useless. He would only find more trouble in the distant Pueblo of the Angels.

He sank deeper in his thoughts, picking over the factors arrayed against him one by one, trying honestly to evaluate them and, even more, himself and his chances.

Then, unaccountably, his thoughts swung to Rennie Thatcher. He recalled how she had looked on the stage, a tall and stately girl. He saw her then as she had been at Las Montanas, still tall, now lovely in jeans and shirt.

She had looked so shocked and disbelieving when her father had accused him of being a murderer. And when he did not deny the charge, he could again clearly see the quick flash of emotion, gone in a second, and then detestation.

It would happen a hundred times again in his life unless he found who had killed Chavez.

He dwelt on that killing as he rode toward the mountains that cut the Valley from the coastal plain. Chavez had been a sneaking bully, a man who spoke loudly of his own worth, while he ran off a head or two of his neighbor's beef on dark nights.

Blaise had lost a couple of steers and had trailed them to Chavez's disreputable rancho in the shadow of the Chatsworth rocks.

He had found the steers, and Chavez, bleating swift and frightened lies, all the bravado gone. Blaise had flattened him a couple of times and then kicked the gun from the man's hand, when Chavez tried to draw and kill him. Blaise had jerked the man to his feet. "You'll draw on the wrong man some day and he'll slap a bullet between your eyes. If I ever catch you anywhere near my range or wearing a gun, you'll be in bed for a month."

He had driven the stolen steers back to his rancho. There had been trouble before with Chavez; Paul Case and the others knew of it. Leonis had undoubtedly known, too.

Blaise's lips curled angrily as he thought how easy it had been for Leonis to move quietly in. He or a Scorpion man had killed Chavez two nights later. The man's gun and belt had been found in Blaise's rancho while he rode the hills. Leonis and some of the Scorpion crew had captured Blaise and taken him directly to Los Angeles and the jail. Paul, Melanie and, the others had testified for him, but the prosecution had used the known facts of the bad blood between Blaise and Chavez, the belt and gun to convince a jury. The judge had given a life sentence. It had been that easy. It had taken ten years, innumerable appeals to the governor, and a great deal of money to get a pardon. But the murder stigma remained and it always would until Blaise found which Scorpion killer had shot Chavez.

The famous opera star, Lauritz Melchior, earned some of his earliest fees by singing at funeral ceremonies. One of his favorite songs on these sad occasions was the hymn by Grieg that ends, "The angels touched your forehead with a palm leaf." One time when Melchior sang this song, a roar of laughter went up from the mourner's bench. Melchior was puzzled at the time, but understood everything when he discovered later just how the deceased had made his exit from this vale of tears. A companion had hit him over the head with a beer bottle.

The advertising manager of a big Chicago daily has decided that women are like newspapers, reports Tide, and lists the following reasons to support his thesis: They have forms; they are made up; they have bold types; they always have the last word; they have great influence; they carry news wherever they go; they are much thinner than they used to be; and finally, every man should have one of his own and not borrow his neighbor's. The manager adds this postscript: Back numbers are not in demand.

they begin to think that they have been outsmarted by both the presidential nominees on the question of Civil Rights legislation. They may decide to string along with Governor James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who says he wants to hear the campaign arguments before deciding how to vote.

At first Stevenson seemed to side with the southerners on this question. He opposed a compulsory FEPC unless the states defaulted. He said that the question of repealing rules permitting southern filibusters was one for the Senate, not the President, to decide. This was eminently satisfactory to Dixie.

But now that the threat of a southern rebellion seems to have vanished, the candidate has changed his mind. He is weakening in both questions. It looks as if Stevenson, sure that the South will not break away, is making a play for the Negro vote that is so important in so many key northern states.

CHANGED — General Eisenhower has also changed the direction of his attack.

When it appeared that he might carry several southern states, he was dead set against a compulsory FEPC. But as soon as the South seemed to rally behind Stevenson, he wavered. Sixteen Republican Governors and Senators, as well as prominent Negro spokesmen, insist that fair employment legislation will be enacted in an "Eisenhower Administration."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 — The Democrats' selection of popular and formidable candidates for the United States Senate in several doubtful states may prove to be a definite asset for Governor Adlai E. Stevenson when the electoral roll is tabulated next January. They may carry him to victory in these areas on their community coat-tails.

This local reinforcement is especially valuable—in fact, essential—to the Democratic presidential nominee because he is relatively unknown outside his own state of Illinois.

How to overcome this handicap in a short campaign is one of the chief concerns at Springfield. Stevenson must depend on the home-state talent to make him known to their constituents as they stump their respective states.

It is a lucky break for him that so many states have named first-rate men to run on the same ticket with him.

VOTE-GETTERS — This situation is exemplified most strikingly in the Middle West, where isolationist sentiment may react adversely against Stevenson's plan to defend the general foreign policy enunciated and executed by President Truman and Secretary Acheson.

Unless there has been a tremendous shift of public opinion since 1948, the Democratic nominee is expected to carry Illinois. He swept it by 572,000 only four years ago, and it is generally admitted that he ruled the state well. The Arvey machine in Cook County will outdo itself to place him in the White House.

In Indiana the Democrats have nominated Governor Henry F. Schricker, who placed Stevenson in nomination at Chicago. Schricker is one of the best the Hoosier state has produced in many years. It is generally believed that he will defeat Senator William E. Jenner who is regarded as a second-rater on Capitol Hill.

GAIN — W. Stuart Symington's defeat of the presidential favorite, Attorney General J. E. Taylor, in Missouri can be chalked up as a gain for Stevenson. Symington's tremendous primary vote, as well as his prestige and personality, give him an edge over the Republican incumbent, Senator James P. Kenn. Taylor would have been only a so-so candidate.

Although Tennessee is normally a Democratic state, Representative Albert Gore's trimming of the Senate octogenarian, Kenneth McKellar, should make sure that it will not waver. As one of the youngest and ablest members of the House, Gore should sweep Tennessee into the Democratic column for himself and Stevenson.

STRONG — In another section of the country—Massachusetts—the Democrats have named a strong man to oppose Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. He is Representative John Kennedy, son of the former SEC chairman and Ambassador to England.

Lodge is not the sure winner he is supposed to be. His servile support of the Truman-Acheson foreign policy has antagonized certain Bay State elements, as did his leading role in the Eisenhower camp.

Like his father, Kennedy has not hesitated to criticize certain aspects of the Administration's foreign policy in a state which has many anti-British voters.

OPPOSED — Ironically, President Truman has opposed, publicly or privately, almost all of these men whose nomination might well aid Democratic chances.

He has recently revealed that Barkley was his choice over Stevenson until the "veep" was forced to withdraw because of labor's opposition. He backed Taylor against Symington in Missouri. He favored McKellar over Gore, a Kefauver type of insurgent. He has no love for Schricker, who has not been too friendly with the McKinney-McHale faction.

While he took no part in Massachusetts politics, Truman has resented young Kennedy's criticism of various phases of the aid-to-Europe program. The Boston Irishman voted for a cut in hand-outs to Europe on the ground that our allies were not doing their part to defend themselves.

AUSTRIA APPEALS

A MOVE is under way to enlist the support of the United Nations in behalf of an Austrian settlement that would end the postwar occupation and restore the independence of the Vienna government. What good this will do is obscure, but Austria is submitting its case to all members of the UN, in hope that the question will be brought up in the next General Assembly, where, Austria appears to think, pressure might be brought to bear through a recommendation having behind it the weight of world opinion.

In the UN charter the handling of World War II peacemaking was reserved to the great powers. But as the result of a deadlock between the Western powers and the Soviet Union, one by one these problems are being dumped into the lap of the world organization.

This has been true with respect to the independence of Korea, for example, and the disposition of the former African colonies of Italy. Somewhat related were the Security Council's consideration of the Berlin blockade, and of the delayed withdrawal of Soviet troops from Iran.

Inability of the great powers to reach agreement has tended to solidify the partition of Germany. It has produced a peace treaty with Japan in which the Soviet Union refused to participate.

Unless an effective lever can be found to lift the occupation of Austria, that country stands in peril of the same fate that befell Germany-partition. Austria has long since been drained by Moscow of more than the reparations to which the Soviet could be justly held to be entitled.

The other powers have been ready for a long time to honor their pledges, but Moscow clings to the advantages derived from maintaining its troops in the very center of Europe. It will be interesting to see whether the UN can shake loose its grip.

It is alleged that when he went to work for Remington-Rand at $100,000 a year General MacArthur had to throw away a straight-edged razor he had used for 50 years and take up an automatic, but he must have known about this before he accepted the post.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 — The Democrats' selection of popular and formidable candidates for the United States Senate in several doubtful states may prove to be a definite asset for Governor Adlai E. Stevenson when the electoral roll is tabulated next January. They may carry him to victory in these areas on their community coat-tails.

This local reinforcement is especially valuable—in fact, essential—to the Democratic presidential nominee because he is relatively unknown outside his own state of Illinois.

How to overcome this handicap in a short campaign is one of the chief concerns at Springfield. Stevenson must depend on the home-state talent to make him known to their constituents as they stump their respective states.

It is a lucky break for him that so many states have named first-rate men to run on the same ticket with him.

VOTE-GETTERS — This situation is exemplified most strikingly in the Middle West, where isolationist sentiment may react adversely against Stevenson's plan to defend the general foreign policy enunciated and executed by President Truman and Secretary Acheson.

Congress passed and the President approved the following law:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, under such terms and conditions as he shall determine, the President is hereby authorized to extend, or to enter into an agreement extending, to the representatives of member states (other than the United States) on the Council of the Organization of American States, and to members of their staffs, the same privileges and immunities, subject to corresponding conditions and obligations, as are enjoyed by diplomatic envoys accredited to the United States."

Nobody seems to bother about such matters any more, but here is an additional group of aliens who are given privileges in the United States which American citizens do not enjoy. Everybody connected with the United Nations, down to the chauffeurs of the underlings, enjoys the privilege of extraterritoriality.

One day last winter, I was coming out of a restaurant in Rockefeller Center, when I saw a policeman politely, almost deferentially, telling the chauffeur of one of those UN cars to move out of a space where no one is permitted to park. The chauffeur resisted the suggestion, insisted upon his privileges, but as a crowd had gathered, he finally thought of the effects of public opinion on his country which was undoubtedly getting a subsidy from us on one pretext or another.

I asked the harried policeman why he did not tell the so and so to get the hell out of there as he would do to any American under similar or the same circumstance. He answered that it would result in a diplomatic crisis with the State Department writing a formal note to the Mayor of New York.

Extraterritoriality is a courtesy reserved for diplomats with the object of freeing them from restraints by the country to which they have been delegated. It is a privilege which is nearly always abused. From the diplomat, as a person, it has been extended to his household and to his office staff and to those who service them. Its extension has been abused by some countries giving diplomatic passports to those who have no right to them, including spies.

It is true that just as the United States grants extraterritorial privileges to foreign diplomats, so they are granted to our representatives abroad. The difference, however, is that many or even most of the international organizations, such as the United Nations, are now situated in the United States and there are therefore too many persons in this country who enjoy extraterritorial privileges. In New York, the United Nations people get a special license plate with UN on it to warn anyone not to get into trouble with the driver of that car as he need pay no damages, need carry no insurance and cannot be arrested.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

"MAYBE it's just another of Leonis' sick moves," Slim said hopefully. "It'd be like him to sell another man's land to some fool that wouldn't know the difference. Looks like you need me more'n ever. I'll sure get back fast."

"All right, Slim. We'll meet you at the rancho after we come back from Los Angeles. If we get a ranch, we'll work it. If we haven't—" He shrugged eloquently.

"There's a big fire somewhere off in the mountains," Slim said as he kicked off the brake and shouted the horses into motion. The wagon gathered speed on the downgrade and soon disappeared around the bend. Hal and Blaise had mounted and galloped along the road.

"Slim said there was a fire, Hal," could be most anywhere, but I'd like to make sure."

They wound through the mountains at a fast pace. They came out on the final ridge and immediately saw the dirty gray cloud high against the southern sky. Hal could see it was a big fire, burning deeper into the distant Santa Monica toward the ocean. He jerked around when he heard Blaise's exclamation. The man's eyes were wide, his face stricken.

"That's us!"

Blaise grimly raked the spurs and rocketed down the last slope. Hal reached to catch up with him and both rode at breakneck speed through the village and out into the Valley beyond.

As they watched, sudden bright flames and billowing columns of black smoke marked where big clumps of sumac burned fiercely. Over it all was the gray-yellow smoke of the sagebrush, flaming along the mountain slopes. Already he could see the black carpet of ruin the fire left behind it.

They reached the highway, plunged across. Blaise turned into the ranch road, racing up it to the narrow opening of the canyon, through the portal. He reined in, face suddenly white. The ranch house was only smoldering, not ashes, the chimney standing grim and black above the ruins. Blaise scarcely heard Hal rein in beside him, or the man's amazed oath. The corral was gone. Only the decrepit bunkhouse remained. Leonis had returned an answer to his challenge.

They turned toward that portion of the ranch yard that the flames had missed. Hal searched the corral while Blaise went directly to the bunkhouse. He pushed open the door, saw that the dust on the floor had been undisturbed. He worked down the slope and at last stopped, calling Hal.

"Horses, at least three of them. They stood here while the riders set the fire."

Hal hitched at his gun belt, passed. "That's good enough for me. I'd head for Calabasas."

Blaise stood silent, studying the

The famous opera star, Lauritz Melchior, earned some of his earliest fees by singing at funeral ceremonies. One of his favorite songs on these sad occasions was the hymn by Grieg that ends, "The angels touched your forehead with a palm leaf." One time when Melchior sang this song, a roar of laughter went up from the mourner's bench. Melchior was puzzled at the time, but understood everything when he discovered later just how the deceased had made his exit from this vale of tears. A companion had hit him over the head with a beer bottle.

they begin to think that they have been outsmarted by both the presidential nominees on the question of Civil Rights legislation. They may decide to string along with Governor James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who says he wants to hear the campaign arguments before deciding how to vote.

At first Stevenson seemed to side with the southerners on this question. He opposed a compulsory FEPC unless the states defaulted. He said that the question of repealing rules permitting southern filibusters was one for the Senate, not the President, to decide. This was eminently satisfactory to Dixie.

But now that the threat of a southern rebellion seems to have vanished, the candidate has changed his mind. He is weakening in both questions. It looks as if Stevenson, sure that the South will not break away, is making a play for the Negro vote that is so important in so many key northern states.

CHANGED — General Eisenhower has also changed the direction of his attack.

When it appeared that he might carry several southern states, he was dead set against a compulsory FEPC. But as soon as the South seemed to rally behind Stevenson, he wavered. Sixteen Republican Governors and Senators, as well as prominent Negro spokesmen, insist that fair employment legislation will be enacted in an "Eisenhower Administration."

Band Mothers Laud Helpers In Fund Drive For Uniforms

The Band Mothers of Circleville High School Thursday expressed thanks to individuals and groups that joined in contributing to the cost of new uniforms for the musicians. A four-month drive by the organization collected $3,494.06 for that purpose.

A statement issued by the Band Mothers stressed their "very deep appreciation" for all assistance given toward the campaign.

"We are indeed proud of the spirit that prompted so many of our folk here in Circleville to make it possible for our band to purchase new suits for this fall," the statement added.

The Band Mothers, together with representatives of the band itself, several weeks ago made selections from styles and prices offered by seven different companies. It was decided to purchase suits for the band and its director from a Cincinnati firm, and those for the majorettes and drum major from a New York concern.

Individual measurements were later taken on each band member and a sample uniform approved.

The order for 74 band suits was then completed. Nine majorette and flag carrier uniforms were ordered through a local store.

Band uniforms will consist of the following:

Vest type jacket in red with a red stripe on black trousers; white citation cord; gilded buttons; red and black hat with white ostrich plume, and white spats.

The style for majorettes will be unchanged with a white skirt and red jacket, a 10-inch white hat with a red plume, and white boots.

The statement issued by the Band Mothers concluded:

"The final appreciation of your fine contribution we hope will be proven this fall when our high school band comes strutting out on the football field, making its first appearance in its new uniforms."

This is an extension of extraterritorial privileges beyond wisdom or necessity. I lived under extraterritorial conditions for nearly 14 years and can witness that consular officers of some European and Central and South American countries sold passports and extraterritorial privileges. There was a law firm in Shanghai that specialized in this business and very profitably.

I knew in Shanghai the Chinese who specialized in the opium trade and they always were able to have the protection of persons enjoying extraterritorial privileges. The system was so scandalous, its abuse so notorious that it became one of the principal objects of an anti-foreign movement and was finally abolished in a series of new treaties negotiated with Chiang Kai-shek's government.

"Seeing eye" dogs are trained at Morristown, N. J.

sons enjoyed extraterritorial privileges, the abuses were likely to be important. But when the system is extended wholesale to include chauffeurs and cooks and officeboys, the degree of responsibility must be lessened.

Someday, there will be a murder or a dope-peddling case, or the smuggling of jewels in diplomatic pouches for private sale—and then the fat will be in the fire.

Meanwhile, would it not be smarter for a Congressional committee to study extraterritoriality in the United States, how it operates, who is privileged to enjoy it, how it applies to our traffic laws, to the payment of personal bills, and the dangers of abuse? Then let there be a full report on the subject so that the American people might know just what we have been let in for.

Austrians Lacking Faith In Currency

NEW YORK (AP) — Mortgage money in Austria can be had from lending institutions only for repairing properties, reports John C. Tysen, president of Previews Inc., national real estate clearing house, on returning from a tour of European countries.

"The interest on these loans is 12 per cent," Tysen says. "Many mortgages call for the repayment of principal in commodities rather than currency. The reason for this is the lack of confidence in the future of the currency. Lenders want to be as sure as possible that they retain the purchasing power of the funds they invest."

DIET AND HEALTH

Early Diet Of Strained Meat Benefits Premature Infants

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

STRAINED meats may be very important to a premature infant during the first few months of life. A premature infant is one born before the normal time of nine months. It is therefore smaller and weaker than the normal infant.

Usually, a premature infant weighs less than four or five pounds. Sometimes, when such a baby is very tiny, it is necessary to put it in an incubator, which supplies it with humidified air.

Over the years, it has been found that premature infants are more susceptible to infections and diseases, and are less likely to survive than normal, full-term infants.

Recently, a study was conducted to determine the effects when premature babies were fed strained meats. In full-term infants, the early feeding of strained meat helps form red blood cells and hemoglobin needed by the blood. It also has a tendency to promote the infant's general well-being.

Three Test Groups

One group of premature babies was put on a diet of strained meats; a second group was fed the normal diet, and still another was breast-fed.

There was no difference in the number of illnesses or the tendency toward illness in these different groups. However, the premature receiving meat showed a tendency to have a much higher blood count and amount of proteins during the first half-year. These are very important for body growth.

Not Much Difference

By the time the babies were a year old, this difference was equalized, and there was practically no difference between the infants receiving the regular formula and those breast-fed.

The breast-fed infants, it was noticed, gained more in both weight and length than the babies who were receiving meat.

Strained meats are thus helpful to the infant in building up his blood count and proteins during the first few months, but for general well-being it is best to keep him on breast milk.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. R.: My nine-year-old daughter is always complaining of a bitter taste in her mouth. What causes this, and what can be done for it?

Answer: The presence of a bitter taste in the mouth may be due to an infection in the teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses, or throat; also, to constipation or some other digestive disorder. A thorough physical examination by your physician is necessary to determine the exact cause; then proper treatment for the condition may be given.

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The rich men of Iran and Egypt had been blocking progress from time immemorial and then, astonishingly, they got their come-uppance in both places on the same day this week.

In Egypt Maj. Gen. Mohammed Naguib, who tossed out King Farouk, decided the estates of the rich should be broken up and divided among the poor.

And in Iran Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, the mooner and moaner, decreed that the rich who have been paying no taxes, should not only pay some but divide their profits with the poor.

There was nothing new about the realization that social reforms were needed in both countries. They had been talked about for years. But the rich, who ran the governments kept them strictly in the talking stage.

Because past promises and plans have been unfulfilled, the rest of the world can be excused if it waits a little dubiously to see whether this time the promises become a reality.

THERE IS A noticeable difference between the reforms proposed by the general and the premier: Naguib's plan calls for taking land from the rich to give to the poor; Mossadegh intends splitting up estates.

In Iran a relatively few rich families control the wealth and the land. Some of them own hundreds of villages with the surrounding land worked by peasants as sharecroppers.

Mossadegh, himself one of the big landowners and never distinguished for reforms in his property, was pushed into his present proposal by necessity: an economic jam and the Communists breathing down his neck.

He ordered the landlords to turn over 10 per cent of their income from estates to the sharecroppers. They must also deposit in special banks another 10 per cent of their cash income for the aid of needy farmers.

When he scuttled Farouk, Naguib picked as his civilian premier, Aly Maher. When Maher this week suggested only mild reforms, if any, Naguib stepped in to say what he wanted done fast.

No individual or company can own more than 200 acres of farm land. The state would take the rest, pay the owners prices of 13 or 14 years ago, and redistribute the land among the landless poor.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The rich men of Iran and Egypt had been blocking progress from time immemorial and then, astonishingly, they got their come-uppance in both places on the same day this week.

In Egypt Maj. Gen. Mohammed Naguib, who tossed out King Farouk, decided the estates of the rich should be broken up and divided among the poor.

And in Iran Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, the mooner and moaner, decreed that the rich who have been paying no taxes, should not only pay some but divide their profits with the poor.

There was nothing new about the realization that social reforms were needed in both countries. They had been talked about for years. But the rich, who ran the governments kept them strictly in the talking stage.

Because past promises and plans have been unfulfilled, the rest of the world can be excused if it waits a little dubiously to see whether this time the promises become a reality.

THERE IS A noticeable difference between the reforms proposed by the general and the premier: Naguib's plan calls for taking land from the rich to give to the poor; Mossadegh intends splitting up estates.

Pros Favored To Trip Stars In Friday Tilt

2-Touchdown Edge Given Rams To Beat Collegiate Outfit

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Much to the distress of Coach Jumbo Joe Stydahar, his Los Angeles Rams have been installed a two-touchdown favorite over the College All-Stars in their football fracas at Soldier Field Friday night.

Joe can't see the odds that way and has become the first coach of the 1952 gridiron season to get out the crying towel.

After predicting the winning team will have to score at least four touchdowns, the bossman of the National Football League champions let his hair down this way:

1. "It's a one-shot game for the All-Stars and each boy on that squad is ready to play his heart out. That gives the All-Stars a psychological advantage.

2. "A pro team can't get so high. Although the All-Star game is big stuff, the height of the pro season lies ahead—the competition for the championship.

3. "IT'S IMPOSSIBLE for us to reach a peak in three weeks of drills because the average age of our players is much more than the All-Stars.

4. "We'll be hurt in a few key spots—Stan West, Tank Younger, Bill Lange and Charley Toogood won't be able to go at top speed."

Stydahar isn't so sure but what the All-Stars might stop the Rams passing game, something no pro team could do last year.

The big game, starting at 8:30 EST, will be televised over DuMont's network of 53 stations coast-to-coast and broadcast through 400 stations on the Mutual Broadcasting System chain.

Narrow Lead Held In JC Golf Tourney

EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 14.—Roger Boyd, 17-year-old from Tacoma, Wash., held a narrow lead Thursday as the nation's youngsters headed for the halfway mark of the annual Jaycee Junior golf tournament.

The Washington state junior champ, who reached the quarter-finals of last year's Jaycee tourney at Durham, N. C., equalled par 37-35—72 on the 6600-yard Eugene Country Club Wednesday.

There were 18 other players close to his heels, though, as the 100 entrants in this Junior Chamber of Commerce tourney began to learn how to avoid the numerous trees along the fairways.

Don Olney of Circleville, O., the Buckeye champion, carded 40-39—79.

Boros Favored In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 14.—Julius Boros, the "money bags man" from Mid Pines, N. C., was the pre-meet favorite in the fourth annual $15,000 Kansas City Open golf tournament beginning Thursday.

Boros, who got his first real fame as a pro golfer in winning the 1952 U. S. Open, took over money honors by grabbing the first prize of $25,000 in the Tam-O-Shanter world championship match Monday.

South To Wear Gray Uniforms

AKRON, Aug. 14.—When the North-South All-Stars take to the field here Saturday, the Rebels will be clad in gray uniforms while the North team will wear white.

The annual Ohio high school football classic will be played in the Rubber Bowl here in a night contest.

Radio broadcasts are planned by WMOH of Hamilton, WHIZ of Zanesville and WHHH of Warren, and other possibilities are WHKK of Akron and WIMA of Lima. Television station WXEL of Cleveland will film the contest for a later telecast.

Ned Garver May Be Sent To Detroit

DETROIT, Aug. 14.—Boyish-faced Ned Garver, who won 20 games for the eighth-place St. Louis Browns last year, may be shipped to the Detroit Tigers in exchange for Tiger homerun hitter Vic Wertz.

Sources close to the Tiger front office predict pitcher Garver, outfielder Wertz and others will be involved in the waiver deal. They predict it will be announced Thursday night at the expiration of an agreed upon 72-hour waiting period.

Owner Bill Veech of the Browns and General Manager Charles Gehring of the Tigers have known for nearly three days who the players are but they aren't saying.

The Tigers already have sent three players—outfielder Don Lenhardt, pitcher Marlin Stuart and pitcher Dick Littlefield—to the Browns this week to set up the deal. In return the Tigers got only minor league pitcher Bud Black of San Antonio.

Joe Black Fills Big Newk's Shoes OK, Brooklyn Believes

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Joe Black is one rookie who is living up to his spring press clippings.

Back in March Black was hailed as another Don Newcombe in Brooklyn's Vero Beach, Fla., training camp.

He was in great shape as he had spent the off-season pitching in the Cuban Winter League. He was tabbed as the best bet to take up the slack caused by Newcombe's entry into the Army.

Black was the first to admit that he wasn't in the same class as Newcombe, but the 28-year-old righthander has contributed as much to the Dodgers cause as Big Newk did in the past.

It's doubtful if the Dodgers would be leading the National League by nine games if it weren't for Black. Used entirely in relief roles, the Dodger recruit has appeared in 37 games, winning nine, losing two and saving several others.

HIS RECORD is even more impressive as he appeared in only six games until the beginning of June. Since then he has worked in 31 of Brooklyn's 69 games.

Black took part in both ends of Wednesday's day-night doubleheader against the runnerup New York Giants. He gained credit for the 5-4 day game triumph and was tapped for two unearned runs in the 8-4 night game defeat.

Chicago and Cincinnati and Philadelphia and Boston also split doubleheaders. The Cubs dropped the opener to the Reds, 11-3, but won the second game, 7-0.

Philadelphia whipped the Braves, 3-0, but bowed, 9-3, in the night portion of the twin-bill. St. Louis and Pittsburgh were idle.

The New York Yankees retained their 2 1/2-game lead over Cleveland in the American League chase, dividing a bargain bill with Washington while Cleveland halved a pair with the St. Louis Browns.

Washington drubbed the Yanks, 12-4, in the opener but lost the second game, 10-9 in 13 innings. The Browns tripped Bobby Feller and the Indians, 5-2, but Cleveland bounced back to grab the second game, 9-1. In other games, the Boston Red Sox turned back Philadelphia, 4-0, and the Chicago White Sox crushed Detroit, 7-1.

Top Pacers Await Tests In Illinois
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 14.—Some of the fastest pacers now active in harness racing will be seen on Thursday's Grand Circuit card at the Illinois State Fair.

Cheapest event of the day, the free for all pace for $3,360, has attracted the speediest contingent. Dudley Hanover, owned by Hayes Fair Acres of Du Quoin, Ill., and twice victor over Good Time this season, heads the field.

Irish Hal, owned by K. D. Owen of Houston, Tex., Mighty Medium from the Good Time stables and Mighty Gale lead the field of six.

The Review Futurity 3 year old pace will offer a view of the Brown Jug stake, top event for sidewheelers, which is to be raced at Delaware, O., next month. Gander and Thunderclap, Saunders Mills' great pair of pacers, head a field of seven.

A world's race record for pacers was tied Wednesday and the Hambletonian winner, Sharp Note, was beaten in the Review 3 year old trot, as Hit Song, second money winner at Goshen took all three heats.

Sampson Hanover, also owned by Owen, was clocked in 1:57.4-5 as he won the first heat of the Ann Rutledge Stake. Good Time clocked the same time last year in Lexington.

2-Touchdown Edge Given Rams To Beat Collegiate Outfit

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Much to the distress of Coach Jumbo Joe Stydahar, his Los Angeles Rams have been installed a two-touchdown favorite over the College All-Stars in their football fracas at Soldier Field Friday night.

Joe can't see the odds that way and has become the first coach of the 1952 gridiron season to get out the crying towel.

After predicting the winning team will have to score at least four touchdowns, the bossman of the National Football League champions let his hair down this way:

1. "It's a one-shot game for the All-Stars and each boy on that squad is ready to play his heart out. That gives the All-Stars a psychological advantage.

2. "A pro team can't get so high. Although the All-Star game is big stuff, the height of the pro season lies ahead—the competition for the championship.

3. "IT'S IMPOSSIBLE for us to reach a peak in three weeks of drills because the average age of our players is much more than the All-Stars.

4. "We'll be hurt in a few key spots—Stan West, Tank Younger, Bill Lange and Charley Toogood won't be able to go at top speed." Stydahar isn't so sure but what the All-Stars might stop the Rams passing game, something no pro team could do last year.

The big game, starting at 8:30 EST, will be televised over Dumont's network of 53 stations coast-to-coast and broadcast through 400 stations on the Mutual Broadcasting System chain.

Narrow Lead Held In JC Golf Tourney

EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 14.—Roger Boyd, 17-year-old from Tacoma, Wash., held a narrow lead Thursday as the nation's youngsters headed for the halfway mark of the annual Jaycee Junior golf tournament.

The Washington state junior champ, who reached the quarter-finals of last year's Jaycee tourney at Durham, N. C., equalled par 37-35-72 on the 6600-yard Eugene Country Club Wednesday.

There were 18 other players close to his heels, though, as the 100 entrants in this Junior Chamber of Commerce tourney began to learn how to avoid the numerous trees along the fairways.

Don Olney of Circleville, O., the Buckeye champion, carded 40-39-79.

Boros Favored In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 14.—Julius Boros, the "money bags man" from Mid Pines, N. C., was the pre-meet favorite in the fourth annual $15,000 Kansas City Open golf tournament beginning Thursday.

Boros, who got his first real fame as a pro golfer in winning the 1952 U. S. Open, took over money honors by grabbing the first prize of $25,000 in the Tam-o-Shanter world championship match Monday.

South To Wear Gray Uniforms

AKRON, Aug. 14.—When the North-South All-Stars take to the field here Saturday, the Rebels will be clad in gray uniforms while the North team will wear white.

The annual Ohio high school football classic will be played in the Rubber Bowl here in a night contest.

Radio broadcasts are planned by WMOH of Hamilton, WHIZ of Zanesville and WHHH of Warren, and other possibilities are WHKK of Akron and WIMA of Lima. Television station WXEL of Cleveland will film the contest for a later telecast.

Ned Garver May Be Sent To Detroit

DETROIT, Aug. 14.—Boys-faced Ned Garver, who won 20 games for the eighth-place St. Louis Browns last year, may be shipped to the Detroit Tigers in exchange for Tiger homerun hitter Vic Wertz.

Sources close to the Tiger front office predict pitcher Garver, outfielder Wertz and others will be involved in the waiver deal. They predict it will be announced Thursday night at the expiration of an agreed upon 72-hour waiting period.

Owner Bill Veck of the Browns and General Manager Charles Gehring of the Tigers have known for nearly three days who the players are but they aren't saying.

The Tigers already have sent three players—outfielder Don Lenhardt, pitcher Marlin Stuart and pitcher Dick Littlefield—to the Browns this week to set up the deal. In return the Tigers got only minor league pitcher Bud Black of San Antonio.

Joe Black Fills Big Newk's Shoes OK, Brooklyn Believes

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Joe Black is one rookie who is living up to his spring press clippings.

Back in March Black was hailed as another Don Newcombe in Brooklyn's Vero Beach, Fla., training camp.

He was in great shape as he had spent the off-season pitching in the Cuban Winter League. He was tabbed as the best bet to take up the slack caused by Newcombe's entry into the Army.

Black was the first to admit that he wasn't in the same class as Newcombe, but the 28-year-old right-hander has contributed as much to the Dodger cause as Big Newk did in the past.

It's doubtful if the Dodgers would be leading the National League by nine games if it weren't for Black. Used entirely in relief roles, the Dodger recruit has appeared in 37 games, winning nine, losing two and saving several others.

His RECORD is even more impressive as he appeared in only six games until the beginning of June. Since then he has worked in 31 of Brooklyn's 69 games.

Black took part in both ends of Wednesday's day-night doubleheader against the runnerup New York Giants. He gained credit for the 5-4 day game triumph and was tapped for two unearned runs in the 8-4 night game defeat.

Chicago and Cincinnati and Philadelphia and Boston also split dou-

Leach Tied For Top In Junior Medal

Ted Leach, 17-year old Pickaway Country Club caddy and runner-up in the Metropolitan Caddy tournament, went into a tie for top place Wednesday in the District Junior Medal fairways test at Groveport.

The Circleville youth stroked a third round 76, which went with his previous 151 for a total of 227—the same registered by Bob Barton of Scioto.

Final 18 holes of the 72-hole event are scheduled Thursday.

Leach finished only one stroke behind James Pugh of Columbus North High School to take second place trophy in the caddy competition Tuesday at Twin Rivers.

Dr. Blackburn Eases Public Fears On Spreading Of Polio

Health Leader Doubts It Can Spread Easily

Points Out Families Of Victims Often Escape Disease

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner, said Wednesday he saw little danger of spreading polio through the touching of articles previously handled by victims of the disease.

"I doubt very much that polio can be spread in that manner," he said. "Neither do I see any cause for concern on the part of a person who finds he or she has been in close association with one later stricken."

He called attention to the fact that a polio victim is frequently treated for years without having the disease spread to other members of the family or medical attendants.

"Often of course it does happen that polio spreads through several members of one closely associated group," Dr. Blackburn conceded, "but the overwhelming evidence seems to indicate that some other factor besides the mutual use of articles and close personal association is at work in such cases."

THE COUNTY health head repeated his recent assertion that it still isn't definitely established that polio is contagious in the usual sense of the term.

"Leading medical men still aren't certain on that point," he said, "although anyone exposed to the disease should take all possible precautions until the question is settled. Polio is far too dangerous a disease for anyone to take chances."

Dr. Blackburn is inclined to believe the disease can be spread only through carelessness, either by the victims themselves or by those caring for them, after the virus has attacked and symptoms are evident.

"For instance, in the case of a polio patient affected in the throat—where the disease usually shows first," he said, "Through carelessness at that stage and during subsequent treatment of the case it would seem to me the disease could quite easily be spread."

"However, medical science is still struggling with the cause and contagion of polio, and it's virtually impossible therefore to give positive advice relative to it.

"We just don't know enough about the disease."

Dr. Blackburn recently called attention to the theory that polio may originate in and be spread by certain types of food usually known to be healthful. Some research specialists are investigating the possibility that an unknown combination of circumstances, probably traced back to the soil, can cause polio reactions through undetected poisons in foodstuffs.

SUCH POISONS, it is theorized, are extremely hard to trace since they are fast changing and apparently prevail only in relatively small areas at highly irregular intervals.

Presumably too the physical condition of the individual would also be involved in some unknown manner to explain why the disease seems to pick out members of a group or family when it first strikes.

In line with the new theory, now reported under study in New York laboratories, Dr. Blackburn said the histories of polio cases neglect far too often the food eaten by the victim before symptoms appeared.

"A strong effort should be made," he said, "to trace the history of foods eaten—and for as far back as the individual can accurately remember."

"This phase of the search for clues against polio isn't nearly as well studied as it should be. It's very possible all suspicions along this line would net nothing, but at least we have many reasons to push the line of study—and conceivably it could lead to a preliminary key to the polio mystery."

Cubans Warned Slums Must Go

HAVANA (AP) — The revolutionary government of President Batista is revolutionizing the picturesque bohio, a thatched hut in which thousands of Cubans live in rural areas.

The government has set up a special commission to inspect rural housing to bring it up to minimum standards. The bohio, made of the thin pliable leaves and the thick, stout fronds of the royal palm tree, must have a concrete floor, a good supply of good water and adequate toilet facilities, says Batista. If the owner fails to meet these standards, the government will step in and do the work at the owner's expense. A check made by an army agency shows that only 6,000 of Cuba's 80,000 bohios meet minimum requirements.

Some research specialists are investigating the possibility that an unknown combination of circumstances, probably traced back to the soil, can cause polio reactions through undetected poisons in foodstuffs.

SUCH POISONS, it is theorized, are extremely hard to trace since they are fast changing and apparently prevail only in relatively small areas at highly irregular intervals.

Presumably too the physical condition of the individual would also be involved in some unknown manner to explain why the disease seems to pick out members of a group or family when it first strikes.

In line with the new theory, now reported under study in New York laboratories, Dr. Blackburn said the histories of polio cases neglect far too often the food eaten by the victim before symptoms appeared.

"A strong effort should be made," he said, "to trace the history of foods eaten—and for as far back as the individual can accurately remember."

"This phase of the search for clues against polio isn't nearly as well studied as it should be. It's very possible all suspicions along this line would net nothing, but at least we have many reasons to push the line of study—and conceivably it could lead to a preliminary key to the polio mystery."

Vermont was the first state to have an official state flower, the red clover.

Cubans Warned Slums Must Go

HAVANA (AP) — The revolutionary government of President Batista is revolutionizing the picturesque bohio, a thatched hut in which thousands of Cubans live in rural areas.

The government has set up a special commission to inspect rural housing to bring it up to minimum standards. The bohio, made of the thin pliable leaves and the thick, stout fronds of the royal palm tree, must have a concrete floor, a good supply of good water and adequate toilet facilities, says Batista. If the owner fails to meet these standards, the government will step in and do the work at the owner's expense. A check made by an army agency shows that only 6,000 of Cuba's 80,000 bohios meet minimum requirements.
